CAMPAIGN "FAKE" SHOWS

O'REAR IN CLOSE QUARTERS

Canard Sent Over Kentucky and Then Re-dispatched to Papers by Local Correspondents.

Hoping to intimidate Democratic workers in their efforts to get every McCreary man in the county to the polls next Tuesday, dispatches have been sent to the various State papers, represented here by a Republican correspondent, that D. S. Johnson, of the Johnson Detective Agency of Cincinnati, has been here for some days and has discovered a "terrible plot" to carry this county for McCreary over O'Rear, who is the county's choice and as a "consequence the Democrats are thrown into a panic."

The whole story is shrouded in mystery and intimations are made that "important arrests are likely to follow."

The same story simultaneously appeared from other cities and Chairman Vansant quickly branded the whole scheme as a miserable campaign trick, calculated to fool only the unwary. He also offered to submit to the examination of Chairman Langley, his books and papers, showing every contribution received to the McCreary campaign fund, from whom, etc.

Heretofore the cry has always been "If we don't have our way, we will telegraph the United States Marshal."

Many negroes, to say nothing of many prominent white Republicans, are outspoken for McCreary and Craig and this hue and cry is but an effort to whip them into line and bluff Democrats into inactivity.

To give the fake a genuine appearance, the mysterious Johnson is alleged to have secured confessions from two negroes here, implicating "prominent people" in the purchase of their certificates.

We do not know what these alleged confessions are, but imagine it would be little trouble to get them to sign anything besmirching the character of any reputable citizen.

Campaign Chairman W. B. White has been waging a vigorous campaign here for weeks and proposes to use every legitimate means to have an honest election held and a fair count had, believing the returns will show that McCreary has carried the county by the usual majority.

William Woodford Painfully Injured in Auto Accident.

It was a first thought that amputation would be necessary, but Mr. Woodford was taken to Lexington the following morning to the Good Samaritan Hospital where it was found it would not be necessary to remove the thumb.
